

Information, data and media literacy

Video Transcript

REVIEW AND FORECAST

Congratulations! You have completed the first chapter on the topic of information, data and media literacy.

Chapter 1 explained some of the many ways in which we encounter IDM in our digital lives. You became familiar with the most important terms and gained an insight via case studies into the application of information, data and media literacy. In the next chapter, we will introduce you to the topic of plagiarism. We wish you pleasant studies!

[Video transcript]

Congratulations! You have now completed the first chapter of this course on information, data and media literacy.

This first chapter was all about the relevance of IDM.

You became familiar with the basic concepts related to IDM, immersed yourself in the life of the artists and connected the concepts in the metaphor with IDM.

You also learned about Swiss standards for information literacy, what the ACRL Framework means and which competence framework the University of Basel uses; i.e. “Digital Literacies”.

To sum up, you have learned the most important foundations of IDM and are now equipped for the next chapter of this course. We wish you continued success and enjoyment!