

Information, data and media literacy

Video Transcript

CONCLUSION

Congratulations! You have now completed all the chapters of our course on information, data and media literacy and have arrived at the end.

First, you learned the basic concepts and terms of IDM, illustrated in a story about the memory palace and the people who reside in it.

In the second chapter, you learned strategies for managing your independent academic papers. Time and task management were emphasized in particular as central methods.

We finished by discussing academic plagiarism. You have learned what plagiarism is, why it is important to cite sources properly and how to avoid plagiarism.

We hope that you will benefit from the skills you learned in this course in your studies, work and daily life. Thank you for your participation and all the best.
